China's Environmental Regulatory Updates and Waste Stewardship Program

0900 - 0910	Welcome by Mr. Jeff Sacre & Mr. David Chng
0910 - 1020	China's Environmental Regulations Trends and Updates Mr. Martin Shi - Shanghai EHS Risk Solutions Co., Ltd. Mr. Shi's presentation will give an overview of environmental regulatory framework for China, look at emerging trends, and provide the regulatory update for China. Several new regulations regarding waste management plan standards, storage standards, identification signs for hazardous wastes and Air Pollution Treatment Plans were implemented in 2021. Find out more details and how some of these new regulations will impact the industries and how they will affect the ways hazardous wastes will be managed. Mr Shi will also discuss some issues relating to "The 14th Five-Year Plan" National Evaluation of Standardized Environmental Management of Hazardous Wastes and what changes and directions the Ministry of Ecology & Environment (MEE) will focus on in the coming years.
1020 - 1110	The Importance of Waste Stewardship Mr. David Chng, Asia Pacific Director, CHWMEG, Inc. The most important and potentially, most risks, involves managing of the waste that is generated at all stages of the manufacturing (including unwanted/end of life products) and it is important that these are managed properly as the liabilities extends beyond the organization's fence line, and that the responsibility extends forward to include responsible management, transport, recycling and treatment/disposal of all "wastes and spent materials" generated. Mr Chng's presentation will look at options available to manage these issues, to include actions available to them, monitor, and manage suppliers
1110 - 1120	Break
1120 - 1220	Discussion Recent Case Studies and its Impact on Industries Mr. Martin Shi - Shanghai EHS Risk Solutions Co., Ltd. Mr. Shi will share cases of China's enforcement actions with actual examples of environmental cases for handling of hazardous wastes and the emerging trends of stricter regulatory enforcement and how the use of various legislative instruments has changed. Case studies will be presented to demonstrate why attention to waste management matters is important to sustain businesses in both short- and the long-term.
